HUCKLEBERRY HOUND'S SNOW BONER

"Bones, bones everywhere! It may be funny to a bunny, but not to your old pal, Huckleberry Hound. Thirteen bones are hidden in the bone-white snow, and I can't find a one of them. I can't smell them, either, in the frozen air. See how long it takes you to locate those pesky bones so I can enjoy a real hound-dog treat."

Huckleberry Hound The BIG TOW

HUCKLEBERRY HOUND'S

POPCORN SNOW FUN

Huckleberry Hound wanted a snow man, and one that would last; so he made it of popcorn! To make it stick together, he cooked up a batch of hound-dog-type syrup which turned out so well that the popcorn snow man may not last long, either! If mother will follow Huck's recipe, you will have enough popcorn left to make a snow man and lots of popcorn balls for funny faces, too.

YOGI BEAR'S BARE STRENGTH

Yogi Bear is building up his strength for all the winter sports ahead. But he also has a few tricks up his sleeve just in case his strength fails him. Try Yogi's strength stumpers on your friends.

This little girl has challenged the boys to pull apart a twisted paper napkin quicker than she. Of course, she beats them every time because she secretly dampens the center of her napkin so that it comes apart easily with her first tug.

Tell a friend to hold his two fists together, one on top of the other, and inform him that you are going to knock his fists apart with just your two index fingers (Fig. 1). Strike his right fist with your right finger and his left fist with your left finger in a crosswise motion as shown in Fig. 2. You will separate his fists every time. Now ask him to try knocking yours apart in the same way. He will soon discover that your hands will not budge, because as you put your fists together, you slip your bottom thumb inside the top fist to anchor them firmly together as in Fig. 3. Your friends will be amazed at your bearlike strength.

Have a mock indoor snowball fight—it's packed with fun! Place your comic magazine between two players and give each player three small shirt buttons and one large button. The players take turns placing the small buttons, one at a time, on the snowballs in Huckleberry Hound's and Mr. Jinks's hands and flipping them. To flip the buttons, press the large button down on the edge of a small button so that the small button hops over the fence and lands on the other side. If a "snowball" lands in the opposite fort for a direct hit, score twenty-five points. Count five, ten, or fifteen points if a snow circle is hit. If the button misses the magazine, repeat the turn. Record the points each round and play five rounds (fifteen flips) to make a game. High score wins.
